

Bernstorff, H. G. von (1909) Deutschlands Flotte im Kampf

Hans Graf von Bernstorff (1909) Deutschlands Flotte im Kampf: Eine Phantasie

A detailed, well-illustrated account of the modern German navy and a future war at sea. Bernstorff was a naval officer who was later a bestselling writer in his time (1905-1914), especially for magazines such as Das Neue Universum and Der Gute Kamarad. His pseudonyms include H. von Benno and Grafin Helena Gyldensteen. [I. F. Clarke, Voices Prophesying War: Future Wars 1763-3749 (1992), p. 233]

An unnamed overpowering enemy (meaning certainly England) forcing Germany to war. The novel describes the various naval battles of the German Navy up to the victorious final battle off Heligoland.

Other posts of possible interest:

Eisenhart, K. (1900) Die Abrechnung mit England

Seestern (1906) "1906 "Der Zusammenbruch der alten Welt

Stevenson, P. L. (1899) How The Jubilee Fleet Escaped Destruction and the Battle of Ushant

Curtis, A.C. (1902) A New Trafalgar. A tale of the torpedo fleet

Vaux , P. & Yexley, L. (1907) When The Eagle Flies Seaward